Lewis County boil-water advisory ends for Pe Ell residents

OLYMPIA — A boil-water advisory for Pe Ell residents has ended after a series of tests show that the water meets federal drinking water standards and is safe to drink.

Several inspections done between Wednesday, July 3 and Saturday, July 6 by a state Department of Health engineer found no obvious source of contamination.

The Town of Pe Ell issued the advisory on Tuesday, July 2 after E. coli was detected in a routine water quality monitoring sample.

Residents who have questions about their water can call 360-291-3543 at the town hall.
